Good Afternoon!

As we conclude today's parade, allow me to express my sincere appreciation to everyone who has contributed to the planning and preparation of this important operation.

Today is not merely a ceremonial gathering. It is a demonstration of the state's readiness, capability and determination to maintain peace, stability and the rule of law throughout our country.

The deployment of this multidisciplinary force sends a clear message that government is prepared, coordinated and committed to protecting the rights and safety of all who live in South Africa.

I wish to thank the leadership of all participating departments, agencies and organisations for their cooperation and commitment. The strength of this operation lies in our collective efforts and our shared responsibility to safeguard our nation.

To the men and women who will be deployed across the country, we have every confidence in your abilities. From where we are standing, we do believe you are properly equipped for this operation.

As you carry out your duties, remember that your conduct must always reflect the values of professionalism, discipline, impartiality and respect for the Constitution.

You have received your marching orders.

Your responsibility now is to execute your duties firmly, fairly and within the confines of the law.

Facilitate lawful and peaceful protest.

Protect lives and property.

Ensure that communities remain safe.

Act decisively against criminality wherever it arises.

South Africans expect nothing less from us.

We have engaged extensively with various stakeholders in recent weeks and there is broad support for peace, stability and lawful conduct on 30 June.

We therefore remain confident that the overwhelming majority of South Africans will choose dialogue over confrontation and peace over disorder.

As law enforcement, our responsibility is clear: to ensure that the rights of those who wish to protest peacefully are protected while equally protecting the rights of those who wish to go about their daily lives without fear, intimidation or disruption.

Let us remain united in purpose and focused on our mission.

SUID-AFRIKAANSE POLISIEDIENS

SOUTH AFRICAN POLICE SERVICE

We have one country to protect.

We have one Constitution to uphold.

We have one responsibility to ensure that peace, safety and stability prevail.

On behalf of NATJOINTS, I wish all deployed members safety, strength and success in the execution of their duties.

May you return safely to your families after serving your country with distinction.

I thank you.
